

Swing Development, a company based in San Francisco with office in Warsaw, focusing on partnering with top Venture Capitals in Silicon Valley to help their portfolio companies move forward with their products, is looking for:

User Interface and Visual Designer

What will you be doing?

You will be helping create projects that can change industries. Product you design will be surely featured on TechCrunch. Many will be featured on App Store and some will become the Next Big Thing.

You will have huge creative freedom and ability to influence the project, so you will take ownership and responsibility for what you do.

You will work with your friends in Poland as well as directly with engineers, designers and product managers from San Francisco.

You will be working hand to hand with a bunch of best developers. You will be a first member of our design team, so it will grow under your leadership.

Learn more about our culture here: Swing Dev Culture Deck. (<http://goo.gl/iOhx3w>)

We score 12/12 in Joel's Test. (<http://goo.gl/ph8q0n>).

Required

- Well-rounded person that is able to translate business requirements to amazing user experience.
- Skills to turn the UX/UI designs into beautiful visual designs.
- Attention to details, ability to make quick mocks as well as pixel-perfect design.
- Discipline regarding preparing screens based on templates: same margins, fonts, colors everywhere ;)
- Good command of English. Sense of humour.
- Nice to have: experience with preparing assets for web and mobile developers.
- Nice to have: experience with designs for mobile operating system, knowing their limits and specific use cases.
- Nice to have: experience with branding and logo design.

Included

- Gear with Apple logo and nice large Dell monitor.
- Ability to work on demanding but at the same time rewarding projects.
- Single desk waiting only for you in office in city center.
- American living out in Poland that you can talk to and pick up some West Coast slang (he loves to teach English).
- Delicious breakfast every Friday, cooked by one of us.
- Lots of laughs and fun with Polish and American folks.

How to apply?

Email a summary of your experience and your portfolio to marcin@swingdev.io

